The Bulletin. SATURDAY.

The Kentucky Supreme Court has settled the fact that a dog roaming on a neighbor's premises may be killed with impunity or other suitable means.

The following is the official vote of Tennessee for Governor:

For John C. Brown..... 78,779
For W. H. Wiser..... 41,500
Brown's majority..... 37,279

Ly Virginia paid taxes to the Federal government only in proportion of her population, as the Federal constitution requires all taxes to be levied, her share would be about two millions of dollars less than the Radicals impose upon her.

Gen. Frank P. Blair, according to good authority, has already a sufficient number of the Missouri Legislature for him, to assure his election as United States Senator. Frank Blair, as his successor, would be the last straw on poor Drake's back after his inglorious exit from Missouri.

The lower house of Congress has passed a bill abolishing the franking privilege, and it is likely the Senate will soon take similar action upon it. The gross abuses to which this privilege has been carried, cries loud for its repeal.

The House Committee of Foreign Affairs have unanimously agreed to report a bill to Congress allowing any company to land submarine cables on the shores of the United States, with such restrictions on their regulations as will permit the messages of the Government to have precedence at all times. There are other immaterial reservations.

The Republicans in Congress held a caucus a few evenings since, in which a general amnesty bill was discussed. The chances seem yet to be in favor of more general relief than that which is afforded by the measure introduced by Butler. The general sentiment of the Republicans seem to be more liberal.

The friends of the San Domingo annexation scheme think they have achieved quite a victory in the vote of the Senate Thursday night, on the resolution providing for a commission to visit that barbarian spot in mid-ocean. The raising of a commission to visit San Domingo, and the annexation of San Domingo are two separate and distinct things. The latter may yet be defeated.

Recent Washington dispatches indicate the probability of a controlling coalition in the Forty-second Congress between the Democrats and revenue reform Republicans. It is believed that the coalition can be made in time to secure a favorable organization of the house.

Revenue reform was the great question involved in the recent elections, and will be the prominent subject for consideration immediately after the meeting of the next Congress. The aims of both Democrats and reform Republicans in this behalf are identical, and there cannot, therefore, be any sacrifice of principle on either side in bringing about the coalition. It ought to be and no doubt will be done.

The Shawneetown Mercury affects the belief that Col. Crebs' contest with D. W. Munn has opened his eyes to the fact that the people are opposed to an exorbitant tariff on the necessities of life. This is richness, most especially when we reflect that Col. Crebs made the race on a platform that demanded that the "necessaries of life" should be placed on the free list. The race with Dan Munn convinced the people that Col. Crebs was the man who reflected their sentiments on the tariff question, and consequently they re-elected him by an increased majority of fifteen hundred and eighty-one votes.

MIXED SCHOOLS.

A Very Emphatic Expression of Opinion on the Subject.

I perceive that some comments made by you upon an article which appeared editorially in the organ of "The Cairo Ring," entitled "Work for the Illinois Legislature," has called forth a feeling "explanation" from the Illuminator's presiding genius.

The first point which attracted my attention was, how came the notable editor to insert an editorial article without reading it? Does it seem probable that he would do so? I believe not. The second point is, as he adopted it as his own without personal approval, willing to accept the borrowed honors as his own; but now, that THE BULLETIN calls him to an editorial account, he wants to shift the blame on some unknown "advanced" Radical. Has he told the truth?

Well, the shifts and shallows of this un-ballooned trackless thing called Radicalism, are, it appears to me, beyond the comprehension of the most experienced trickster in the political walks of life.

Advanced Radicals are evidently feeling their way. Radicalism is anything—digressive—progressive—aggressive—retrogressive—subversive, if it can only retain power. That it is falling to pieces by its own overgrowth is too evident to admit of doubt.

Let Radicalism strive to push the negro, not only into our public schools, but into our private schools, the moment that it is attempted, the white men of all parties, with a few exceptions, would combine to banish the negro from the city. Wherever the negro pays taxes, justice requires that he have the full benefit thereof, and let that sum, be it great or small, be deducted from the aggregate school tax, and handed over to him. Is there a white school teacher of either sex, in Cairo, who would retain his or her situation, if the five hundred negro children of Cairo were to crowd our school buildings? Would they submit to the humiliation of such an outrage? Is there a single Radical, outside of the outcast Ring, who would tolerate the wrong? I cannot believe it.

Rather let our splendid school buildings be razed to the ground, and the system that has been our pride and glory be overthrown!

If the movement should ever be seriously mooted by the discordant Radical faction, then I say let there be an earnest, effective combination of white men to say to the negro, to whom God has apportioned his lot in this world: "So far shalt thou come and no farther." Remain in your station; we will help you to build your school houses and to educate your children; but when you presume to ask admittance into the public schools, built by white men for white men's children, from that hour, not another day's work either as laborers or mechanics, or as indoor or outdoor servants, shall you receive from this community. "Go! Stand not upon the order of your going; but go at once."

It seems to be an indispensable requisite for the man of the Sun to seek notoriety in some shape or form. He can't exist without it. Trust himself he will, in some form or other, upon public notice. This may be, however, in obedience to the code of the Ring—obey or die.

Notwithstanding, the Sun foreshadows, (blunderingly, it is true) the ultimate aim of the Radical party—a party which it is to be devoutly hoped will be destroyed ere it is too late, by the returning sense of the people and by the triumph of the principles of Democracy, the safeguard of the Union and Constitution.

Let us hope, then, that the editor of the Sun and his "cohorts" will see ere long not only but

THE SENATORIAL CONTEST.

Logan's Chances Diminishing.

The Springfield correspondent of the Chicago Republican, writing under date of the 21st instant says:

The senatorial question assumes a new aspect. It was understood that the President favored the election of Mr. Logan, and State officials, apprehensive of the President's displeasure, affected the earnest support of that gentleman. It is reported that Grant has written to a leading Representative, an old friend, to disavow all interference, and the State officials have relaxed in their efforts in behalf of Logan. Several claimed by him have declared for Oglesby or other candidate. Rumors are current that the coming man has appeared in the person of Hon. Jesse K. Dubois, an original, worthy, and well known Republican. It is said Grant's letter was written to Logan's prejudice. Though ex-Auditor, Dubois has been counted among Logan's friends, he is so generally esteemed and so universally popular as to make him the strongest candidate in the caucus. Republican members from the south are fearful of incurring the expense of a special election to fill the vacancy occasioned by Logan's election. The pocket nerve of the Egyptians is peculiarly sensitive.

BLOODY DOINGS.

Terrible Tragedy—Suicide and Attempted Murder.

[From the Springfield, Mo., Patriot.] A most shocking tragedy was enacted in this city, on last Saturday night, about 8 o'clock, which resulted in the death of a man by the name of Morgan, by a pistol shot from his own hand, and the dangerous wounding of his wife by an attempt at murder.

It appears that Morgan and his wife had not lived harmoniously together, and that a few days ago a rupture occurred which resulted in their separation. Mrs. Morgan leaving her husband and refusing to live with him longer. Morgan repeatedly tried to persuade her to return to him, but she refused; and on Saturday night he called at Otto's boarding-house, just north of the Kentucky House, and again solicited her to return. She replied that she would not, and turned to walk away from him. As she did so, Morgan drew his pistol and fired, the ball striking her in the back part of the head, passing through, and coming out on the right side of the face, about an inch above the corner of the mouth.

Morgan then left the house, and a short time afterward, when in the vicinity of Knott & See's planing mill, deliberately shot himself through the head, killing himself almost instantly.

Mrs. Morgan, though dangerously wounded, will probably recover.

Morgan was a painter by trade, and is said to have been one of the best workmen in the city. He was undoubtedly greatly affected by the trouble with his wife, and there are some evidences that his mind was disordered when he committed the terrible deeds of Saturday night.

ENCOURAGE HOME INDUSTRY.

Sensible Suggestions.

[From the Banker Hill Gazette.] It is the interest of every one to encourage the mechanic, manufacturer, merchant and tradesman in his own town, city or village. Who will not do so manifests but little regard for the prosperity of the place where he lives. The man, or woman, who invariably makes purchases abroad should look abroad for employment in his or her particular line of occupation. In order to build up and add to the size and prosperity of the place, the citizens thereof must support and encourage each other. The property holder will thus be benefited by the advance of the value of his possessions, the mechanic by the erection and improvement of stores and dwellings, and the laborer by the increased demand for his services. If every one should go abroad to make his purchases, trades of all kinds would languish, men would have no work, the grass would grow in our streets, and only the wealthy persons would have any money to purchase anything either at home or abroad. While it may be considered the duty of every resident to purchase from merchants at home, it is emphatically a duty the latter owes to the prosperity of the town in which he lives to sell at such rates as may prevent the purchaser from being forced to seek a supply abroad. The worst enemy a town can have is an incompetent merchant. Such a man does not know how to buy, and is therefore unable to enter into successful competition with outsiders, and to make a living at small profits. To encourage each other is the way to live and prosper; at the same time it is incumbent upon each and every one to conduct trade in such a way as to command home support and encouragement.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.

The Pension Agents Defeated.

[From the Soldiers Friend.] The pensioners of the country have reason to rejoice over the triumphant defeat of Col. John M. Crebs. The pension agents had defeated the re-nomination of Hon. Wm. Lawrence in Ohio, knowing full well that the boys in blue would have returned him to Congress, if nominated, and they sought to crush out the leader of the pension reform in Illinois, Col. John M. Crebs, but they have met an overwhelming defeat. They boasted that they had placed in nomination against him.

One of his biggest guns, Daniel Mann, and that he would sweep the district by 2,000 majority. They scattered their thousands and tens of thousands of dollars, invoked the aid of the press, the State and the Chicago Journal tells how the battle was fought:

"Special praise is due to Dan Mann for his splendid canvass of Egypt. He was defeated, notwithstanding there was no desertion among the colored troops, and by a larger majority than General Baum was two years ago, but the fault was not his. No one else could have done as well. The district is composed of fifteen counties and to fill many of his appointments required the traversing of regions unblest with railroads. He did not shrink from the task, but made thorough work of it."

While in 1868, Col. Crebs only had 500 majority, he now has 1,500. He was true to his old comrades and they have been true to him, and they may rely upon it, he will fight the pension agents to the bitter end.

Farnsworth, the enemy of the pensioners, had the pleasure of feeling his immense majority of 14,400 dwindle down to 1,850, while Logan's majority of 59,000 has been reduced to about 23,000. The good work is going on.

A VIRGINIA ATROCITY.

Horrid Crime by the Black Husband of a White Woman.

[Pittsburgh Correspondence N. Y. Herald.] Some time last January our people were shocked to hear that a Mrs. Bettie Barber, a white widow lady of respectable connections living a few miles from this place had been married to Ishmael Lipford, one of the blackest and basest negroes in the county. Leaving the friends of her childhood and taking with her the children of her former husband, she went to live with Lipford in a hut a few miles distant from the village. As a natural sequel to the unpardonable and inhuman union, the couple lived together in an almost starving condition, detested by both races, and under auspices in every way unfavorable to the happiness and enjoyment of married life. Among the children of the wife was a son about five years of age, known by the name of Henry. Prudent friends had been named the name of the mother's former husband. This little boy, a bright and harmless child, had to be, of course, supported by the parties to the new marriage, and as is too often the case, even in the highest circles of life, was the scorn and object of continual ill-treatment from the adopted parent.

On yesterday evening Henry thoughtlessly disobeyed the injunction of Lipford about some trivial matter, and was caught within a few steps of the rustic cabin in which his mother was lying on a bed of illness, and in a moment of unrestrained anger was murdered, without time to utter a prayer, and before his piteous cries could bring assistance to rescue him from the demon negro. The manner of murdering was as could have been expected by none but an ignorant, brutal negro. The boy was caught by Lipford and struck with his fist, back of the head, blow after blow, which dislocated the neck bone; the body was then thrown upon the ground, and stamped by the huge feet of the infernal rascal until the kidneys were bruised and the stomach burst, and the last breath had departed. The agonizing screams of the child were heard for two miles, and the mother, to raise herself from bed was forced to listen to the heart-rending shrieks and dying sob of her child—unable to render him any help.

The dead stood for some time looking over the dead body of his victim, after the struggling had ceased, then stopped and picked it up. The child never spoke.

The jury of inquest rendered a verdict as follows:

"We, the jury, upon our oaths, do say that Henry P. Barber came to his death by blows received from Ishmael Lipford."

Lipford was at once taken into custody, and is now confined in the jail here.

The prisoner is as black as midnight, has a brutal, hard and severe countenance, and is about thirty-five years of age. He was raised a slave in this vicinity, and is a man of notoriously bad character.

He has served a term in the penitentiary for stealing. He takes matters with a stolid composure and indifference, and seems hardly to realize that he will soon furnish another subject for the gallows.

THE PEOPLE OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD cannot let the death of her child stone for the sins of the mother, and in her sore affliction and distress she is almost friendless. Yet she clings with motherly affection to the horrible fellow who, though her husband, is the murderer of her child, and a fiend with hands stained by the fresh blood of innocence.
